

Governor's Message Calls For Long, Active Session

By VINCENT THOMAS
Assemblyman, 68th District

What promises to be the longest legislative session in a generation got off as scheduled. Officers in both houses were reelected, with only one change, that in the minority leader in the Assembly. With the smallest class of freshman Legislators in some years, the work of organizing committees is proceeding smoothly.

Since the Governor delayed the delivery of his opening message until the second day, more bills than usual were dropped in the hopper on the first day. As was not unexpected, several measures in both houses called for immediate appropriations to aid in restoring bridges destroyed and highways damaged by the disastrous floods which hit the northwestern part of the state with particular violence, and for relief of those left homeless.

The Governor's hour-long message certainly determined that our session will be very active. He started with recognition of the fact that there are two matters of primary importance and great urgency which confront this Legislature. Reapportion-

Art Courses Increase at HC Campus

Expansion of the Harbor College Art Department, with a new art building scheduled for completion during the spring, includes four full-time and two part-time instructors on the day staff. Eight instructors teach during the evenings.

Among the new classes offered this spring is a day class in interiors, art 6, taught by Mrs. Lenore Eisenstein, who brings to the college experience which includes merchandising and home economics, and art areas such as color design and decoration.

Beginning and advanced life drawing will be offered this spring separately from figure construction and advanced students will have the opportunity of working in many media.

Harbor College art instructors include Jari Havlena, advanced life drawing, design, painting and art history; Fran Matraga, ceramics; John Cassone, water color painting, perspective, design, freehand drawing, and figure construction; Harold Jones, advertising art, lettering and perspective drawing; Dr. Maurine Holwerda, fundamentals of art, and Dr. Laurence Welch, art history.

HC Outlines Many Courses For Evening

Harbor College has programmed a varied selection of evening classes for the spring semester. Application deadline is Jan. 22.

Divisions of the evening classes include office machines, real estate, supervision, business administration, accounting, and secretarial. Further information is available by telephoning the admissions office 835-0161.

FARMING REWARDS

Secretary of Agriculture Freeman said that "the American farmer, who has made American agriculture so successful, is the least rewarded and least recognized of any segment of our society, despite his great contribution to our nation's prosperity and well-being."

ment of our Senate, and increasing taxes to meet costs to which the state is already committed will both require major efforts to work out acceptable solutions.

THE GOVERNOR repeated his earlier announcement that he would submit only a "bare bones" 1965-66 budget later on in the session, which would be sufficient merely to carry on the existing state programs. He said that at the same time he would offer his own recommendations for increased taxes. He added that his budget would include only one new program—California's share of the national war on poverty.

He then proceeded to enumerate some 30 proposals for new or changed legislation which will constitute his program for the current session. They range from abolition of the death penalty, through establishment of a new central state revenue agency, increased unemployment insurance and workmen's compensation benefits, to repeal of the existing requirement for a two-thirds vote in each house to pass the state budget.

AS ANTICIPATED, reaction to the Governor's proposals was mixed. His program was generally greeted with approbation by members of his own party, though one influential Senator commented that it created more uncertainties than it supplied answers. Members of the minority party were quick to point out that many of the specific recommendations had been rejected in previous Legislatures. Many legislative observers gave most of the suggestions only a slight chance for enactment at this session.

Two Senators introduced measures relating to reapportionment of their house. Both would merely repeal the present statutory provisions setting up Senate districts, and according to their authors are intended only to provide the basis for committee consideration of the problem. A third Senator announced that he will introduce a series of three measures designed to divide California into two separate states. The seven counties south of the Tehachapis would make up the new state. The lawmaker said that his proposal has already aroused considerable interest, and that several of his colleagues have pledged their support of his measures.
